PROSPECTUS.

THE objects of this Society are to enable members to invest their spare capital or savings in the purchase of lands, or the removal of mortgages or other incumbrances on real property; the erection of buildings; and the negotiation of loans or advances to the members on their shares, secured by mortgage.

A tenant under ordinary circumstances pays his landlord, in about ten years, a sum equal to the value of the property which he occupies, in which, notwithstanding, he has no interest at the end of that period; whereas, if instead of renting his house, he had taken shares in a Building Society, he could at the same expense have purchased a similar property, which at the end of a like term of years, would have been wholly his own.

In like manner the owner of an incumbered property, by becoming a member of this Society, may borrow a sum of money sufficient to transfer his debt to the Society, with the advantage of having an easy creditor, who will be satisfied with small monthly payments running over a period of ten years.

So also, the proprietor of an unincumbered property, who desires to raise funds for any purpose, can avail himself of the facilities offered by the MIDLAND DISTRICT BUILDING SOCIETY, not the least of which consists in the easy terms of repayment.

To the capitalist, on the other hand, or to those who, not having real property, are desirous of investing their savings to the best advantage, a Building Society offers the certain prospect of a very considerable profit, much exceeding that which is to be obtained from Savings, or other Banks; and strengthened by the consideration that the advances made by the Society, on which their profits accrue, are secured by mortgages on real property, of undoubted value—a security which no banking or other public company in this Province is enabled to afford to its stockholders. A Building Society may, in short, be said to combine in itself the stimulus to economy and industry, which is the chief merit of Savings' Banks, together with the security of investments in land, and the high rates of profit incident to mercantile speculation.

The manner in which the business of this Society is carried on is as follows:—Each shareholder pays into the hands of the treasurer a monthly instalment of five shillings on each share of fifty pounds; this, together with the sums arising from fines and forfeitures, forms a fund out of which loans or advances are made to the members in proportion to their shares; in this manner the holder of six shares could borrow £300 at par; but as there usually arises, from the competition of shareholders, a high premium, which varies according to circumstances, from 20 to 40 per cent., the amount actually received for each loan is lessened by that per centage. Such rates appear high, and few persons would borrow money on similar terms, if it were not that every borrower is also a lender, and so equally participates in the gain of the transaction. The real amount paid for the accommodation, is thus brought down to the usual standard by the large per centage received; and the Society thereby also sooner arrives at a successful and profitable termination in direct proportion to the amount of the premium.

The Loans are made at regular intervals, being exposed in amounts of £50 to general competition among the members, and the shareholder who offers the highest premium, receives the loan at the rate of £50 to each share, deducting the price offered, if the freehold or leasehold property which he offers in security be found sufficient as to value and title.

It is unnecessary further to enlarge on the value of Building Societies, which is proved by the uniform success attending their operations in England, and also in Canada, particularly in the city of Toronto, where no less than four similar associations sprung up rapidly in succession; and in Kingston, where the stock of the Kingston Building Society, but a year in existence, is already only to be purchased at a high rate of premium.

The Rules and By-Laws of the MIDLAND DISTRICT BUILDING SOCIETY are nearly similar to those of the Kingston Building Society, the chief difference being that the amount of each share is reduced to £50, with corresponding payments and charges, and that the operations of the Society are not limited to the Midland District, but may also extend to the Districts of Victoria, Prince Edward and Johnstown.

A N A C T

To encourage the establishment of certain Societies, commonly called Building Societies, in that part of the Province of Canada formerly constituting Upper Canada.

[Passed 18th May 1846.]

WHEREAS it is desirable to afford encouragement and protection to the establishment of certain Societies commonly called Building Societies, for the purpose of raising by small periodical subscriptions a fund to enable the members thereof to obtain unincumbered freehold or leasehold property : And whereas, by an Act passed in the eighth year of her Majesty's reign, certain persons were incorporated as a Society for such purposes in the city of Montreal, by the name and style of "The Montreal Building Society;" and provisions were made for the conduct and management of that Society, and certain privileges and immunities conferred upon it : And whereas it is expedient to encourage the formation of similar Societies throughout that part of this Province heretofore constituting the province of Upper Canada, whenever the inhabitants of any particular locality may be desirous of availing themselves of the provisions of this Act :—Be it therefore enacted, &c., That when, and so soon as, any twenty persons or upwards, in that part of this province heretofore constituting the province of Upper Canada, shall have agreed to constitute themselves a Building Society, and shall have signed and executed, under their respective hands and seals, a declaration of their wish and intention so to constitute themselves such Building Society, and shall have deposited the same with the Clerk of the Peace in the District in which they shall reside (who for receiving such deposit shall be entitled to receive a fee of two shillings and six pence), such persons, and such other persons as may afterwards become members of such Society, and their several and respective executors, administrators and assigns, shall be ordained, constituted and declared to be, and shall be, a corporation, body corporate and politic, by such name and style, as a Building Society, as by such declaration so deposited

XXXI. That any member not having received any loan or advance from the Society, being desirous of withdrawing from the Society, may, on giving one calendar month's notice, in writing, to the Secretary, be allowed to do so; and may receive back (without interest) the nett amount of his monthly subscriptions paid up, deducting any fines, interest or forfeitures that may be due, and also a forfeiture of ten shillings per share.

XXXII. That any shareholder, not having received any loan or advance from the Society, may transfer his share or shares, by causing an entry of such transfer to be made in the books of the Society, in such manner as the Directors may appoint, and upon payment of the sum of one shilling and three pence for each share so transferred, and thereupon the transferee, (after executing the covenant to observe the rules), shall be entitled to all the privileges of the original shareholder.
